

Today we are silent

Freedom of expression is under threat worldwide, and civil society is being silenced.

We speak about this every day.

But not today.

Today we go silent...

...in solidarity with those whose voices
have been silenced

Civic space in East Africa has been fighting an uphill battle to survive. The arrest and torture of activists in Uganda, sanctions against the media in Tanzania and Kenya's crumbling media independence all point to a concerted attack on freedom of expression in the region.

Silenced

"There's no activism without risk. With every win, there will be a backlash from anti-human rights currents."

Our partner stood their ground when pressured to shut down a LGBTI conference in Lebanon.

Inequality in Latin America is not only visible, it's palpable; you can almost breathe it. People in Guatemala, Nicaragua, El Salvador and Honduras fight for their basic rights against governments that are increasingly dictatorial.

Why we are silent →

WHAT WE DO

Our focus areas
Programs
Stories of change

WHO WE ARE

Our organization
Reports and documents
How we work
Resources
Contact Us

WHERE WE WORK

NEWS AND VIEWS

Blog
Opinion
Opinion

VISIT OUR REGIONAL WEBSITES

Home Global
Home East Africa
Home Southern Africa
Home Latin America
Home Southeast Asia
Home Middle East & North Africa
Home Netherlands

NEWSLETTER

SUBSCRIBE

STAY CONNECTED

Disclaimer | Privacy | Knowledge | Who's behind the story

